

Citizen pesticide monitoring effort expands

An advocacy group in northwestern Minnesota plans to expand citizen monitoring of pesticide drift. Next week, the White Earth Pesticide Action Network will train volunteers to use the monitoring equipment.

Robert Shimek says three years of monitoring in northwest Minnesota found it's common for pesticides drift off the fields where they are applied.

Read More | Minnesota Public Radio News »

Source URL: <http://www.panna.org/media-center/press/citizen-pesticide-monitoring-effort-expands>