

Program Impacts

Public concern about hazardous pesticide use is on the rise, and support for a more just food and agriculture future is growing. However, this past fiscal year (April 2017–March 2018) brought considerable challenges, including a federal administration that has attempted to dismantle decades of progress in environmental, health and worker protections. Meanwhile, movements for agroecological and socially equitable alternatives are expanding every day. Throughout the year, we made significant achievements in each of our campaigns, especially our coalition-based work in key states.

Highlights of the Year

Healthy Kids

PAN played a leading role in the multi-year Healthy Schools campaign that won pesticide-free buffer zones around rural schools and daycare centers in California. In January 2018, California’s Department of Pesticide Regulation put rules into effect mandating quarter-mile buffer zones when school is in session—a national first. We’ll be watchdogging implementation as part of our work with Californians for Pesticide Reform. At the national level, we worked with allies to gather and submit over 100,000 signatures from supporters calling for an immediate ban of the brain-harming pesticide chlorpyrifos. We joined farmworker and rural community partners at a Washington, DC, press event announcing the introduction of House and Senate bills to ban chlorpyrifos, and spoke at a briefing on Capitol Hill organized by the bill’s House sponsors. We also worked with our lawyers to take EPA back to court for their controversial reversal of the planned ban of chlorpyrifos in March 2017.

Fair Harvest

Our coalition work with California Farmer Justice Collaborative played a central role in passing the Farmer Equity Act, state legislation that will help level the playing field for low- and moderate-income farmers of color who wish to farm sustainably. The law has already lessened reporting burdens for socially disadvantaged California farmers whose operations have little or no negative impact on water quality. We also continued to expand the reach of the Equitable Food Initiative (EFI), a national certification standard supporting healthy, safe production of fruits and vegetables that puts farmworker wellbeing front and center.

Stop Drift

The 2017 growing season was a difficult one for farmers in the Midwest, as Monsanto’s (now Bayer’s) dicamba damaged 3.6 million acres of soy and several million acres of other crops across the region. Dicamba, a toxic, volatile and drift-prone herbicide, was introduced to control weeds now resistant to Roundup. PAN joined with our farmer-led coalition in Iowa and the National Family Farm Coalition to press EPA and USDA to pull dicamba and dicamba-resistant seeds from the market. We also released our In Case of Drift toolkit to help farmers and communities document the impacts of drift damage from dicamba and other pesticides, access available support from state governments, and become advocates on the issue if they so choose.

Farming for the Future

Our agroecology experts presented findings in high profile venues in the U.S. and abroad. At a forum organized by the Global Alliance for the Future of Food in Paris, we worked with civil society allies to ensure social and economic equity were included in climate solution discussions. In California, we engaged with the state's Healthy Soils program and investigated pesticide impacts on soil biology. In Minnesota, we worked with beekeepers and other allies to protect hard-won rules protecting pollinators from pesticides, and held a seat on the Governor's Committee on Pollinator Protection. We also worked with PAN International partners to ensure that "highly hazardous pesticides" were prioritized in the Strategic Approach to International Chemicals Management, an international policy framework promoting chemical safety.

Financial Report

PAN recognizes all grants, pledges and contributions in the year they are committed. In our fiscal year ending March 31, 2018, we invested 11.9% of total unrestricted revenue (12.5% of expenses) in core support for our mission: administration, fundraising and infrastructure.

This year's surplus of $122,552 eliminated over half of the gap from last year. Our FY19 budget has a planned surplus of nearly $100,000, which will fill in the remaining $80,667 completely and jumpstart our plans to replenish our reserve.

For more information, please see our audited financial statements and our IRS Form 990, available at www.panna.org. The IRS Form 990 is also available on www.GuideStar.org.

Our Mission

Pesticide Action Network North America works to replace the use of hazardous pesticides with ecologically sound and socially just alternatives.

As one of five PAN Regional Centers worldwide, we link local and international consumer, labor, health, environment and agriculture groups into an international citizens' action network. This network challenges the global proliferation of pesticides, defends basic rights to health and environmental quality, and works to ensure the transition to a just and viable society.

Thank you for your support!

This year we are acknowledging our wonderful community of supporters. Every dollar helps keep the work going, supporting our scientists, organizers and communications experts, allowing us to fiscally sponsor grassroots groups across the country, and keeping the office lights on! Though we're not able to list all the donors who gave between April 1, 2017, and March 31, 2018, please know that we appreciate each and every PAN supporter. We couldn't do our work without you!
